ANU Educational Fellowship Scheme News

December 2016 Issue no. 20

From the DVCA

As we rapidly approach the end of 2016, it is with great pleasure that I report on the most recent activities of the ANU Educational Fellowship Scheme.

From September to December 2016, the ANU EFS has awarded 59 new Higher Education Academy fellowships, and I am very honoured to say that one of those was to me.

The 5 new Principal Fellows, 11 Senior Fellows, 16 Fellows, and 27 Associate Fellows of the Higher Education Academy come from ANU and 16 other universities in Australia and China.

I congratulate all our new fellows listed below, especially my colleagues in leadership among the Principal Fellows, and our 9 Associate Fellows from the China Scholarship Council. I welcome you all to the EFS as university educators whose experiences, professional practices and commitment to professional values have been evidenced and acknowledged. Your significant contributions to students' learning experiences are very important.

To date, the ANU EFS has acknowledged almost 500 HEA fellows: more than 280 ANU staff and about 200 staff from 30 other universities in Australia, New Zealand and China.

The continued leadership in the professional recognition of university educators that has been shown by ANU since 2013 is very clear. This year, many professional associations have requested presentations about the ANU EFS at national conferences and other networking events.

The Higher Education Academy reports that, of the 80,000 HEA fellows worldwide, more than 650 are registered in Australasia, with some ten Australasian universities now working with the ANU EFS, or directly with the Higher Education Academy, to recognise their teaching and learning staff. The Higher Education Academy is set to recognise this level of interest more actively by establishing an Australasian Strategic Advisory Board from next year, on which

I have proudly accepted an invitation to sit, alongside EFS Co-Chair and HEA Accreditor Associate Professor Beth Beckmann PFHEA. I am pleased to announce that ANU will be hosting the inaugural meeting of this board in early February 2017.

That meeting will coincide with the EFS announcing new enhanced recognition and development pathways to support the University's Strategic Plan as ANU becomes the first Australasian university to be re-accredited by the Higher Education Academy.

I wish you all a restful and refreshing holiday season.

Academic honours for Professor Hughes-Warrington

Professor Marnie Hughes-Warrington received her PFHEA certificate from EFS Co-Chair Professor Michael Martin and CHELT Director Mr Glen O'Grady

Principal Fellow of the Higher Education Academy (PFHEA)

ANU Deputy Vice-Chancellor (Academic) Professor Marnie Hughes-Warrington has been awarded Principal Fellowship of the Higher Education Academy through the ANU Educational Fellowship Scheme.

The award recognises Professor Hughes-Warrington's sustained record of effective strategic leadership in academic practice and academic development as a key contribution to high quality student learning.

Vice-Chancellor Professor Brian Schmidt congratulated Professor Hughes-Warrington on the award.

"Marnie has played an important role in enhancing teaching and the learning experience of students throughout her career," Professor Schmidt said.

"This recognition is a reflection of her effectiveness and leadership as a teacher and champion of teaching excellence, which she has brought to her role at ANU."

Principal Fellowships are awarded to highly experienced staff with a sustained and effective record of impact at a strategic level in relation to learning and teaching, within and beyond their institution.

The Fellowship is an internationally recognised badge of professional competency for those who teach and support learning in higher education.

Nine new Associate Fellowships awarded to China Scholarship Council participants

Nine participants of the China Scholarship Council's residential professional development program for university staff were presented with their AFHEA certificates after successfully completing an intensive mentorship program with Glynnis Anne (Anna) Buckley FHEA from the CHELT EFS team.

This successful approach is building on the University's relationships with Chinese universities and the China Scholarship Council, and the HEA's expanding work in China.

Professional development in teaching for Indonesian partnership project

ANU EFS fellows contributed to the Partnership of Islamic Education program run by the ANU Department of Political and Social Change (CAP) and funded by the Australian Department of Foreign Affairs and Trade. This program enables academics completing PhDs at Indonesian universities to study at ANU for one year.

The six Indonesian academics in the 2016 program were led through a series of intensive professional development modules on higher education teaching, convened through CHELT by Glynnis Anne (Anna) Buckley FHEA. These modules included contributions from EFS fellows Professor Michael Martin PFHEA, Mr Glen O'Grady SFHEA, Associate Professor Asmi Wood SFHEA (Law), Dr Salman Durrani SFHEA (CECS) and Dr Cormac Corr FHEA (CPMS), as well as from EFS applicant Nur Abdul Bahar (CMBE), all of whom provided valuable insight into their specialised areas of teaching.
